

© iStock

SUN OUTAGES

Spring 2017

We will be entering the sun outage season soon. Over the next few weeks, depending on your geographical location, the service on your satellite downlink might experience a short disturbance.

Eurovision has secured its various turn-around teleports for this period in order to guarantee a smooth operation. However, it is impossible to control this phenomenon for each of the reception points.

We therefore kindly invite you to verify when it will occur for your reception sites and take the necessary measures should it affect one of your transmissions. You will find multiple free-of-charge tools on the internet that will allow you to calculate times for your location. We remain available for any questions or special requests.

CONTACT

biss@eurovision.net